Hondrong, DECEMBER 31st, 1906.

For the first time for several years we are enabled to take leave of a passing year and to exercise his power of disallowance with to welcome a new one without any real [necessity to mention the word "war". has been, in comparison with so many of its predecessors, a year of peace, and this happy characteristic was happily marked during its course by the visit and entertainment of the squadrons of two Powers with whom Great Britain is on particularly cordial ternes, France and Japan. As if to emphasise the point still more, 1906 closes with our harbour and city crowded with the ships and sailors of various Powers, all friendly with each other and with us. This is gratifying enough, but the retrospect of the year's events is bound to chasten happily it is again empty. rejoicing, for though mankind has behaved on the whole fairly well, Nature has been in one of her most cantankerous moods. If the year has to have a denominative of any sort, it will probably be known as "the typhoon year", not because of any abnormal frequence of these distressing storms; but because of the extraordinary mischief which loudly sucored. Songs were sung by the the typhoon of September 18th was allowed and by talk of earthquakes, and these local tremours were but unappreciated forerunners of the sensational cataclysms at herds, Magii, Angels, etc. San Francisco, Valparaiso, and Northern India. So though the murderous guns of war have been silent, death has shown his grinning face with almost equally blenching effects. To add to the tale of sorrows, we have but to remember that the year was a bad one for plague and other communicable disease. Mankind's behaviour, already indulgently spoken of on account of the absence of belligerency, is after all entitled only to a qualified approval. The Chinese pirates of the West River, and desperadoes at various places in South China have startled us with their during crimes, incidents having to be recorded even in the harbour and in the city itself. Some sensational commit ments for alleged perjury, and the labours of a commission investigating official ROBERT PORTER & CO.'S | honesty, also help to warn us against any too Pharisaic self-gratulation; although in copy of the programme which we have seen we the movement for the abolition of judicial BULL DOG BRAND torture in the neighbouring empire, and the be devoted to negro minstrelay, including negro achievement of the Anti-foothinding Society. we have seen distinctly humane promises. introducing several novelties, among which That some strife is to be expected in commercial circles has been exemplified in the litigation over the Peck tram business, but against that we may set the unveiling of the ideal of business probity in the new statue of Sir Thomas Jackson. Sir Thomas Lipton arrived at Liverpool from America last month by the Carmania. He said he did not intend to make another voyage to the United States until the race for the America Cup, and he hoped to send a challenge next year for a race in 1908. All the races up to now had been held under the old measurement rule of 55 years ago, which it was impossible to think of continuing. It only represented a freak or machine of a boat which was dangerous to everybody who crossed the Atlantic in it, and, besides, there was no advantage to be gained by vachtsmen as there was nothing to learn from such a craft. It was a class of boat not allowed to be raced by any other yacht club in the world. reminding the reader that at a very remote our answer is that after the Roman empire had period silver was more valuable than gold; that passed its meridian in the third century, down subsequently, owing to the prolificacy of the to the discovery of America at the close of the Grecian and Spanish mines, gold became more lifteenth, comparatively little gold and silver valuable than silver, first in the Western world, was minted in Europe; and that whatever may and afterwards in the Eastern; and that the have been the mint regulations or the conflict western and eastern ratios remain distinct up to of laws that occasioned the narrowing a recent date, silver having always been more of the ratio from 500 B.C. to 1492 valuable in the Orient than in the Occident. The Arabian empire, let us recall, tions respecting money, the relative costs about the tenth century of our era stretched of producing the two precious metals having from Asia across northern Africa and up to the little or no bearing on their value. The southern boundary of France; it had reopened effect of one ratio upon the other was a third in the eighth century that trade with the influence until the two ratios coalesced.

and for convenience we have classified the lost, at the fall of the Roman empire-and since relations of value of the two metals into the trade with the East, so far as it affected two great divisions of families-the Eastern Europe was done by the Arabians with or Indo-Arabic and the Western or Romano- merchants from the Italian and Spanish cities, Germanic -- nevertheless, as a matter of fact it is plain that since the Arabians had there has been no such thing as a distinctive adopted the eastern ratio, they were the manus eastern or western ratio, for to speak accurately the ratio in every locality has been more or less different, each country having been a law unto itself. Yet no country escaped the influence of meighbouring countries, and so great is the intimacy of commercial and three conturies on ward until two-or three year. political intercourse between the various nations of the present day, that the ratio at | as 1873, or nearly to the close of the London, which is the most important market in the world for the precious metals, in effect controls the average ratio of the Western world at least, while very greatly influencing that of the Eastern world.

As we have before said, at the discovery of America the average ratio through Europe harmony with her. And though long before was about 1 to 11 and starting at this point we shall next attempt to make more plain why silver has since almost continually fallon in value relatively to gold, for now the (commercial, ratio may be said to stand at I gold to about 30 silver, speaking in general phrase of recent years. The reader will kindly bear in mind that we are now speaking of the metals us bullion, since of recent years the bullion ratio has departed from the coinage ratio fixed by law which latter is still 1 to 16 in the United States, and elsewhere in America.

One reason of continually acting effect has been that the mint charges, fixed by law in all countries, have been invariably in favour of gold; and there can be no doubt that this heavier than those of civilians. Regimental discrimination against silver, continued for centuries at the mints of every country in Europe, and acting upon enormous sums of coin, has been largely productive of the results observed.

The international exchanges of Europe and America have been effected with gold; not because the transportation of gold cost less than that of silver-it does not, since freight charges 1906, are published for the information of the are based on value, and not on bulk or weightbu because the seignorage, or charge for coining bullion, exacted upon gold coins having been less than that on silver coins, the loss austained by the shipper upon the yellow metal was less than his loss would have assistance with our telephone communications been to melt the white coins. It must be recalled that in all foreign countries. coins are valued as ballion and by weight, and not as in their native land where they pass by tale as coins; and hence the necessity any person remitting abroad is under of melting down the coins into bullion, or rather of, making his calculations as if he had already melted them before shipping, for they will be melted at their destination.

The next reason why silver fell relatively to gold, during the period under review, is of a somewhat less technical nature, and will perhaps be more readily understood by the general reader. It lies in the influence exerted through new and very powerful agencies—the substitution of paper money for coins, and the alteration of the metal standard from gold and silver both to gold alone in Western Europe, the United States, Japan. Mexico, etc., and the consequent valuing of the demonstrated silver by gold-alone. That the effect of this latter was to enhance gold and United States, differed from each other, but | cheapen silver relatively is not to be seriously disputed by men of intelligence, and has been explicitly admitted by many writers and thinkers of eminence. And indeed how could it be He delivered a copy of those regulations to now required. It was under the universal rule otherwise? For since it is their use as money, and not in the arts, which gives their chief value to these metals, it is easy to see that the serious curtailment of the New York Club to say whether that should | the demand for either of them for the formbe so, and he had great faith in their judgment er purpose, and the turning of that demand upon the other to the extent of the curtailment, (in addition to its own demand previously existing for 'that other), must of necessity tend to raise the latter and lower the former relatively to one another, and perhaps even relatively to the general level of commodities—though as to this last other considerations would enter the calculation. Surely the precious metals, oven when made st this port early Tuesday morning, the lat into money, are obedient to the law of supply and demand like all other things.

A third reason for the fall of silver, during the period in the past which we have been discussing, is to be found in the fact that German mails with dates from Berlin of the 4th | during the brief space of time that has elapsed since silver has been demonstrated, and has come may be expected here on or about Wednesday, to be treated as a mere commodity to be valued by gold, i.e. from 1873 to 1900, the supply of At a shooting examination of the military at 8 a.m. on Saturday, the 29th inst., and left silver annually has been increasing, while that officers which took place at the North Gate again at 3 p.m., same day, for Shanghai, where of gold has, taking the whole twenty seven years Dr. Ho Nai Hop, disguised as Santa Claus, parade ground under the supervision of Admiral she is due to arrive at 5 a.m. on Monday, together, not increased until nearly 1900 when named Leong Sui hit the bull's eye five times, The N.G.I. str. HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF MONEY. 1900, of the other in annual supply, lies food for thought.

If at this point of our inquiry we are asked, why the European ratio took nineteen centuries to narrow from 14 or 15 to 11, while it took but Let us summarise what we have said by three or four centuries to widen from 11 to 16, Orient-that commerce never failing to enrich Now although for the sake of perspicuity allengaging in it, which had been lost, or almost of most effectually bringing it in contact with the western ratio, until the Moors were driven out of Spain.

And concerning the widening of the ratio, or the fall of silver, from Columbus' time for ago, let it not be forgotten that even so late fourth century subsequent to the discovery of America, the European ratio stood on an average at less than 1/16, being sustained in the last part of the time by the mint laws, vast coinages of France, and also by the regulations of the Latin nations acting in 1873 many of the other legal supports upholding the existing ratio had one by one heen knocked away, so that when the suspensions of specific payments in Russia, Austria, Italy, Spain and the United states came, and the practical cessation of the coinage of silver at their mints was in turn followed by the establishment of go d as the only primary moneythe standard -in so many other countries, we certainly cannot marvel that then the ratio widened greatly in a score of years. The only wonder is that it did not widen more than it did -that the coinage ratio and the ballion or commercial ratio of the metals did not go farther apart than they did.

Here we will pause; for we have intended to lay before our readers certain facts of history, in order to prepare their minds for some suggestions as to what the future may hold. We have thus far carefully abstalned from any inquiry as to whether gold rose, or silver fell, relatively to the general level of commodities. Nor have we thus far put forward any of the very strong arguments for the opinion that since the demonstration of silver in 1873, that metal did not fall at all, but that its rival, gold, has enhanced in value (until about 1900)-in short that the divergence between the two metals was due entirely to the rise of gold.

Our next article will deal with the facts of the present, and the considerations that should" occupy men's minds for the future—subjects of far more general and contemporaneous interest.

INTERNATIONAL RUGBY MATCH. At Happy Valley on Saturday afternoon an international Rugby match was played between teams representing Scotland and Ireland and England and Wales, the latter scoring an easy win by thirteen points. The players were :--

England and Wales :- Back, Hill; Threequarters, L. C. Larmour, T. E. Pearce, T. L. and L. J. Blackburn; Forwards, H. W. Lester. F. C. Kendall, F. C. Hall, P. W., Goldring, L. S. Greenhill, H. M. Kendall, R. M. Ranking and Lieut, Hunton.

Scotland and Freland: Back, B. Johnson tl ree-quarters, J. Mc. G. Taylor, A. O. Lang, C. M. Proshaw and J. G. Leckie; halves, A. G. Fleming and A. M. Fraser; forward, H. G. C. Bailey, R. G. Munro, Macdonald, J. Hanron, Holmes, Buckle, M. Logan and Roberts.

Goldring's play at the start kept the game in Scottish and Irish territory, but the pressure was relieved by a free kick. The series of long kicks which succeeded ended in the ball finding the line near Scotland and Ireland's twenty-five, and although England and Wales were having the best of the game the smart tackling of their opponents prevented a score. Eventually however, Hancock secured a pass and handing. off Johnson, scored England and Wales' first try: Kendall took the kick at goal adding th additional points amid lond cheering. Such was the score at half time when play was ir English and Welsh territory.

All along the line England, and Wales were triumphant in the second half, not withstanding the gallant defence put up by the Scotch and Irish team. Lloyd was next to gain the full back and passing to Hancock the latter had no difficulty in scering, Pearce adding the extra points which made England and Wales' ten to their opponents' three. Two further tries for England and Wales were addedto the score by F. C. Kewinll and Hancock, the latter adding a second try before time was called, when the score stood

H.M.S. "KENT" C. MIDDLESEX REGIMENT. Played on the military ground at Happy Valley on Saturday, this match was one of the most evenly contested in association annals for the season. Rumour has had it that the Middlesex had a team equalling if not excelling that of the West Kents, but after Saturday's mutch, if the soldiers had their best players on the field, the new arrivals are not to be compared with the Kents for all round play. The teams lined up as under:--

H.M.S. Kent: Stafford; Macdonald and Clark; Laxon, Oakley and Patfield; Ellips, Tudor, Fletcher, Peake and Gost, Middlesex : Saunders & Perkins and Warner Miles, Churchill and Sharpe; Howes, Samson, Barton, anglish and Roberts.

Even play lasted for sometime after the kickoff, and then Roberts carried the leather along the field in fine style for the soldiers, the to defend themselves. result of his play being that English had an opportunity. He missed it, however, and from a subsequent free kick given his team no score was recorded. The soldiers certainly had the best of the play during the half, but the stubborn defence of Macdonald and Clark saved the situation, and when the conclusion of the half was announced there was no score,

The second half saw the soldiers on the were officers. They did not come in through a defensive. Early in the proceedings Gost took | gatea flying shot, just grazing the horizontal Then for a time the leather was kept on the move between the nets until a scrimmage occurred before the soldiers' stroughold. Here the play was fast and furious, but the soldiers succeeded in clearing without damage.

Miles, their right half, took charge of the leather and by a very clever and tricky game transferred the play, but his further efforts were blocked by Gost who passed to Fletcher, the latter's lightning-like shot just going an inch too high. Still the sailors continued to load the attack, and although for a long time they were unsuccessful the winning goal was eventually notched by Tudor.

Final: H.M S. Kent, 1; Middlesex, 0. ROYAL ENGINEERS v. H.M.S. "TAMAR". The result of this match, which took place at Happy Valley on Saturday, surprised many football followers. In the past the Taniar have always been a staupch team, and in their few losses have generally been defeated by not more than one goal, but Saturdays' match was a great collapse and when time was called the score stood : --

Royal Engineers, 6; H.M.S. Tamar, 2.

Mr. P. W. Geldring, solicitor, deposed that he lived at "Parkside," Kowloon. At about 9 a.m. on the morning of October 15th he and Mr. Barlow were coming through their garden towards the street gate and saw the defendants in the garden some distance away. The garden was a very large one, about two acres. and witness was walking a little in advance of Mr. Barlow and first saw the Indians when they were about fifty yards off, and he called Mr. Barlow's attention to them. They walked something in their own language and Witness having been very ill stood by, not wishing to enter into the dispute. He was standing looking on when the second defendant struck him on his face. At this time Mr. Barlow and the other Indian had closed and witness was engaged in stopping the bleeding from his nose, caused by the blow. The next, thing witness saw was the second defendant rushing at him with his rifle raised. The Indian aimed a blow at witness' head which he warded off with his arm and received such a bad bruise that be was unable to sleep for several nights afterwards. At this stage a ricksha coolie, who had been waiting outside of the gate rushed in and took the second defendant's rifle

There was no doubt that the men were trespassing, whether they knew it or not-This was admitted and had been apologised for. The Indians were assaulted by Messrs. The Indians were then called and deposed that they had been on duty and were returning to the barracks. They got into the garden without knowing they were trespassing and were walking through it when one of the Europeans came up and kicked one of them and said something in English. One of the Indians called out "we are on duty, why do you strike us"? They did not assault the Europeans and thought they

Major Parker stated that the Indians both bore excellent characters. One man had been in the regiment for 19 years and the other six and there had never been a complaint against either of them. The Regiment was a well behaved one. The evidence being of a conflicting nature, his Worship decided to reserve his decision until he had viewed the ground.

CHINESE PLEA FOR JUSTICE.

Much interest attaches to the remarkable letter of protest, printed below, in which a Chinese resident in Singapore repudintes the charges so freely levelled against his countrymen, and challenges comparison with Western civilisation. It may be mentioned that we

Sir,-If there be any sense of justice in England I, as a Chinese subject of the English against the wholesale slander of my people, who constitute about one quarter of the inhabitants of the world. By certain newspapers, which profess to represent the only truly religious and conscientions portion of the English people, the whole of the Chinese are accused of being addicted to the most degrading vices which human beings have ever been guilty It is easy to bring the gravest charges against Crown Colonies, where Imperial justice and a weak and helpless people, as, for instance, the generosity always reign supreme, charges made by the Christians of Russia and Central Europe, that Jews kill and eat young

Christian children and drink their blood during their religious coremonies.

During my business life of 18 years my people have been the victims of civil and foreign wars, of devastating floods, followed by famine and disease, which have destroyed them by scores of millions, yet they are to-day prolific and more vigorous than over. against universal Chinese immorality, Whatever foundation there may be for the evidence referred to in the Buckpill report, it is very clear that such conditions did not exist in the Rand before the Liberal party had taken steps to introduce those conditions. The -publication-in China of those lying pictures of Chinese workmen in chains and being tortured prevented the better class of Chinese labourers, such as had formerly engaged, from coming forward to serve, and thus only the very dregs of China, convicts and criminals of the very worst description, have been induced to leave China for Africa during the last year,

If the Nonconformists, who have sent so many missionaries to China, have any love for righteousness and fair play, they will suspend their judgment on the morality or immorality of the Chinese until a commission of inquiry has sat to investigate how the evidence
